HARRISBURG - Dr. Rachel Levine, Physician General for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, will serve as keynote speaker for the 2015 International Young Leaders Conference sponsored by the World Affairs Council of Harrisburg from 9 a.m.- 4 p.m. Friday, Aug. 7, 2015, at Harrisburg University.

“Global Health in the 21st Century” is the theme of the conference that will include expert speakers on health issues locally, nationally and internationally. Other speakers include Dr. Benjamin Fredrick, M.D., Director of the Global Health Center of Penn State Hershey Medical Center; Dr. Kirsten Bookmiller, Ph.D., Professor of Government and Political Affairs; Dr. Mehdi Noorbaksh, Ph.D., Professor of International Affairs at Harrisburg University and Dr. Oralia Garcia Dominic, Ph.D., of Highmark.

This year marks the 3rd annual Young Leadership Conference that has been organized by the high school and college summer interns associated with the World Affairs Council of Harrisburg. The event also will include a career fair in which both high school and college students may explore various internship and job opportunities within the international companies located in Central Pennsylvania.

The conference is free to high school and college students. Members of the local community are also encouraged to join this event for $15 per person. To register, students should email wachreply@gmail.com and general registration for public is found at <http://wacharrisburg.ticketleap.com/annual-young-leaders-conferenc>

Be sure to save the date for August 7th, 2015!
